The Fellowship recognizes exceptional achievements and contributions by teacher-scholars across Canada. Now in its twenty-eighth year, the Fellowship—over 275 strong—continues to build and enhance personal and institutional reputations as the most prestigious recognition of teaching excellence in Canada. Their home universities particularly can celebrate the Fellows' tireless dedication to teaching, learning, and educational leadership.

The 3M National Teaching Fellows will be introduced to Canada in the special issue of Maclean's on February 7th.

The STLHE will invite the 2013 cohort to join the 3M National Teaching Fellowship formally at the annual conference, hosted by Cape Breton University, on June 22nd in Sydney, NS.

In November, 3M Canada will host the Fellows at the Fairmont Banff Springs Hotel for a scholarly and inspirational retreat.

The 3M National Teaching Fellowship personifies the diverse landscape of the Canadian academy, representing a wide range of regions, disciplines, and universities both large and small.

The 3M National Teaching Fellowship, established in 1986 through the generosity of 3M Canada and STLHE, pays tribute to 278 Canadian professors from 45 universities.
